

Marnee Jackson

Marnee Jackson is a graduate of Rutgers University with a Bachelor of Science degree in Psychology.

She has been employed as a Probation Officer with The State of New Jersey for 17 years. She currently serves as the Marital Early Settlement Panel Coordinator assisting counsel and volunteers in the resolution of contested divorce matters.

She has worked in various roles in the Family Division, however, the most impactful, has been her work in the Children in Court Unit where she dedicated over 12 years of her 17 year career. In this role, she worked intimately with The Department of Child Protection and Permanency, Children in Court staff and the Deputy Attorney General's office to ensure the safety, protection and stability of children in New Jersey.

Most recently, Ms. Jackson has expressed a desire to pursue a career in nursing, where she can continue to be a service to others.

Ms. Jackson treasures her relationships with her family and friends and spends time with them frequently. She also enjoys traveling, experiencing different cultures and the arts.
